by the people so far as its effect is concerned, and the result is that these taxes are public at the time, and in some states have already reached the point of 8 cents or 9 cents per gallon.

Mr. Sloan, who realizes that railroads are absolutely necessary to the public service, property and to industry, including his own industry, says:

"I am, of course, you might say, selfishly interested in protecting the highway user. That is true, in a way, but on the other hand I am equally interested in preserving a sound way, the very fine system of rail transportation that we now enjoy."

Irrespective of what adjustment may be necessary between the highway and the rail, the service that we now enjoy on the rail is an indispensable agency in business and commerce."

Declaring that it is "an un-economic thing unduly to tax any agency of transportation," Mr. Sloan offers these suggestions:

"If an impartial, intelligent economic study was made of the situation, the railroads would have to make some adjustment; such, for instance, as confining their activities more to long hauls, leaving the more flexible, more effective, more direct form of highway transportation for the short haul."

"I am not taking any position as to what should happen—I merely say that we should not subsidize any form of transportation, for by doing so we are increasing the cost to the consumer and we are simply delaying the time when further adjustments will have to be made."

"I am sure you will agree with me that when any new thing comes along it means progress if it is really reasonable. It should not be hindered with things which are economically unworkable. Each thing should stand on its own foundation, and this is particularly true when it affects the cost of transportation which vitally affects our agricultural interests, which, we all know, are in a very bad state, and indirectly affects, although in a smaller way, everything that we eat or use."

This question of railroad and automobile competition, use of the highways, taxation of gasoline and automobiles, which are part of modern civilization and comfort, is not a subject as unimportant as the ordinary news of the day, but it is most important, involving the living plans and household budget of every family in America.

This column has been set to publish the railroad side of the question as extensively as Mr. Sloan has discussed the automobile side. Here, perhaps the Pennsylvania, New York Central, Baltimore and Ohio, Santa Fe, Southern Pacific, Union Pacific, Rock Island and some other western railroad groups.

Bullitt Backs the Drive of the National Economy League

Washington, Dec. 20 (AP)—Reductions of almost $100,000,000 a year in veterans' appropriations was urged before a joint congressional committee today by the National Economy League, which said the government is now paying "nearly one-half of its entire annual revenues to former service men and their dependents."

William Marshall Bullitt, of Louisville, former solicitor-general of the United States, not a member of the league, said he was in "entire sympathy" with its purpose and had been asked to speak for it.

He proposed slashing $100,000,000 from benefits to Spanish War veterans who have suffered no injury or disability from that war, and $300,000,000 paid on account of World War veterans—all "without doing the slightest injustice to any veteran or to his dependents where the veteran died or suffered an injury or disability as a result of his war service."

"For the World War," he said, "the Government has already paid to the veterans $3,450,000,000 for their service, and over $2,000,000,000 for deaths and disability, making between 10 and 11 billions of dollars which the veterans have received, or an average of $3500 apiece."

Fights for Life

Developments today indicated that $12,500,000 appropriated for the Home Loan Bank for the district of New England in Kendall sq., Cambridge, would soon be available.

State Treasurer Hurley, who has been fighting for weeks to obtain sufficient funds for the local Home Loan Bank to permit it to aid distressed home owners, received the following telegram today from Congressman John W. McCormack's secretary in Washington:

MCCORMACK MESSAGE
"An advised by office chairman Federal Home Loan Bank Board that $12,500,000 has been allocated to Cambridge, Mass. (Signed 'MCCORMACK')."

Treasurer Hurley had bombarded Ogden Mills, Secretary of the United States Treasury, and Franklin W. Fort, chairman of the Federal Home Loan Bank board, with letters and telegrams urging that the government forward sufficient funds to the New England Home Loan Bank to meet its obligations, which he explained was daily growing more acute.

Fort was sent to Treasurer Hurley's early communication, but the money was not forwarded, said by Secretary Mills and Chairman Fort. The state treasurer was cheered by the announcement from Congressman McCormack's office.

ONLY MONEY RECEIVED
Inquiry as to the Home Loan Bank in Cambridge revealed that a similar notice had been received recently by that unit, direct from the United States Treasury stating that Congress had provided for a disbursement of $12,500,000 for the New England district.

It was explained the total appropriation would be available at the Cambridge bank in a short time, just when the bank there ventured to predict. It was stated also that since the Home Loan Bank in Cambridge opened several months ago not more than $100,000 in cash had been forwarded to the local unit from the U. S. Treasury to get matters launched.

It was pointed out that the bank there was in a very precarious position and that special legislation will have to be passed before the local Home Loan Bank can fully function in Massachusetts. They said the Co-operative Bank of Lowell and savings banks have been active in arranging for revision of the banking laws.

Gov. Bryan improving, he will have to remain indoors for some time.

Scotti to Retire
In Jan. 20 Opera (AP)—Antonio Scotti, dean of singers at the Metropolitan Opera, announced last night that on Jan. 20 he would make his final appearance in the same stage role he has made his last debut 33 years ago.

"I am an old man," he said, "I am 68. I break my heart, I want to retire. I break up."

His closest friend, Antonio Scotti of the Metropolitan Opera, was deeply grieved. Scotti would rush from a performance to the bedside without taking his makeup off.

For his farewell Scotti will sing his favorite role, the sinister Chimp-Fen, in Leon's "L'Oracolo."

'DOCTOR' PRESCRIBES BRISK RUNNING FOR HEART TROUBLE

TREATMENT OF BACK BAY MAN DRAWS FIRE

"Patient" Describes "Professor's" Ads and Methods

Professor the said Joseph B. Levine, of Chicago, was sentenced to two months in jail in district court today for having prescribed a run home from work as treatment for heart trouble suffered by a prominent Boston business man. He was convicted of practicing medicine without being registered. On appeal from a house of correction sentence he was held in $1000 bond.

Stanley Anthony, high art machine manufacturer living in Marlborough at Back Bay, was the patient for whom Levine prescribed. ADVISES BRISK RUN

Anthony exhibited literature he received from Levine on which was printed, "Dr. Joseph B. Levine," and that at a consultation the practitioner prescribed for him after looking into his eyes and hearing his story.

"I told him I was afflicted with heart trouble," Anthony said, "and he said he recently talked with a student whose heart had dropped two inches."

"He told me what method of transportation I used to and from work and I told him I was in the habit of using a bus. He told me it would be a good idea if I used the bus halfway home and ran the rest of the way."

STATES TO ASK $50 MILLION AID

Washington, Dec. 20 (INS)—The Reconstruction Finance Corp. to meet emergency conditions in January and February probably will exceed $50,000,000.

The corporation today was receiving from governors of the various states their estimates of requirements in the next two months. With conditions showing no improvement and the savings of millions wiped out by long unemployment, charity agencies will be called upon to face the greatest problem ever known.

In the August-December period approximately $85,000,000 was authorized for emergency relief by the corporation. In the 12 states which did not apply for relief funds were Rhode Island, Vermont, Maine, Connecticut, and Massachusetts.

Clarence Whitehill, Baritone, Is Dead

New York, Dec. 20 (AP)—Clarence Eugene Whitehill, once a clerk, who looked like George Washington and sang before royalty, is dead. The noted baritone, who was with the Metropolitan Opera House 19 years, expired in his home Sunday night, aged 62. His widow, the former Isabelle Rush Simpson of St. Paul and Philadelphia, survives, as do two brothers in Iowa.

THEY KICKED FOR CASH; NO CASH, THEY KICK SOME MORE

VIRGINIA STEWART RUTH WILLIAMS JOYCE SUMMERS GINGER GORDON MAE HAYES ALICE BASSETT

These girls, they told the judge today, worked in a cafe floor show but got no pay for same. Seeing as how they were dancers, the law immediately took steps and fined their boss, Ted Moy, a Chinese, $80, and foxtropped him off to a cell under $500 bond. From left to right, Virginia Stewart, Ruth Williams, Joyce Summers, Ginger Gordon, Mae Hayes and Alice Bassett.

'NEATH THE MISTLETOE

An elfish little maiden, with an elfish little way, stood coyly and waited till this occurred today: Her boy friend spied her fairly, and gave a whistle low. Then he proved his gallantry 'neath the mistletoe! Then a gallant spies a lady standing 'neath the mistletoe, he sees his duty plainly and does it like a man. John Gusson, 51 1/2 years old, proved this today when he saw Rose Berrelli, 3, of the south End, standing there today at the Denison House Christmas party. He may not have kissed quite so ardently as would a more practiced Don Juan, but he proved himself a man of no mean pattern, and little Rose proved she is a true daughter of Eve. (Staff photo.)

ANNIVERSARY OF KILLING SEES GUSTINS GONE

Gang Broken Up Since Assassination Year Ago Today

It was the Tuesday before Christmas a year ago that Frankie Wallace, leader of the South Boston Guin gang, and his lieutenant, Bernard "Duke" Walsh, were slain by the guns of a North End gang in a Hanover at building.

The anniversary of that assassination which climaxed a long and bitter feud of hijacking and chieftaincy and invasion of each other's territory by both mobs, finds the Guin gang as an organization out of existence and their rivals stronger than ever.

The murders are unprovoked, as most gang murders in Greater Boston have been within recent years.

COFFEY IN HOSPITAL Timothy Coffey, member of the South Boston gang arrested at the scene of the shooting, is in a Boston hospital today under an assumed name, recovering from injuries suffered in a fight with an agent, the Boston Evening American learned.

Coffey, with Joe Lombardi and others who surrendered after police linked their girls' names with the crime, was released because police offered no evidence connecting him with the shooting.

The North End gang has grown stronger by affiliation with a smaller organization and in addition to controlling liquor distribution in the area is collecting 15 per cent commission from the biggest lottery agents in the city.

MULES CLEANING UP Until a month ago this gang encountered little interference, but since then the assignment of Capt. John Mullen to the North End station there have been 37 liquor arrests and 14 joints controlled by the mob through rum distribution have voluntarily closed as a result of Capt. Mullen's warning that he wouldn't "play ball with any criminals."

The murder of their leader disorganized the Guin gang, one of the strongest organizations of hoodlums in the city, and as a unit they have not functioned since. Many of them have been individually involved in law violations and several are in jail.

French King's Niece Dies in Charity Ward

New York, Dec. 20 (INS)—Simple graves were held today for a once glamorous figure. Countess Josephine de Castelvetro-Franchini, grandniece of Napoleon III, impoverished, crippled and blind, died in the Metropolitan Hospital as a charity patient. She was 68.

After acting in England under Queen Victoria, the countess was brought to the United States 39 years ago by Augustus Daly. She played leading roles in several notable productions. She is survived by ten sons and two daughters, three of them living abroad.

ILLUSTRIOUS ANCESTRY PAYS NO BILLS

Last living descendant of Roger Williams, illustrious New England pioneer, Henry Williams is now living in Dorchester on the $5 weekly old age pension allowed him by the city. He can't pay his taxes—the $5 is all he has in the world—but a bank is pressing him to pay $1000 on a $1000 mortgage. Here you see Williams with one of his treasured heirlooms, the Roger Williams coat of arms. (Staff photo.)

Unpaid Chorines Sue Boss of Closed Cafe

All the little girls got a great big hand from Judge Putnam in District Court today.

Six members of the floor show of the Lido Palace, a Warrenton at night club, that went bankrupt a week ago, appeared in court to sue their boss for unpaid wages.

They were present at the request of Inspector Regan of the State Industrial Board to tell how one Ted Moy, a Chinese, hired them to entertain and then failed to pay them before the club emulated the Archaic temple.

Judge Putnam scrutinized a more or less beautiful sextet which identified its individual selves as Virginia Stewart of Belmont, Ruth Williams and Joyce Summers of Dorchester, Mae Hayes of Milton, Alice Bassett of New York and Ginger (for snapp) Gordon of Cambridge.

GINGER SNAPS AT PAY Ginger was mistress of ceremonies in one night stand and the other girls danced. All asserted Moy owed them from one night to two weeks salary.

"I was hired for $20 a week, but I worked only one night and didn't get anything," said Inspector Regan. "How much does that figure up you are owed?"

Said Ginger: "Figure it out for yourself."

2 OTHER GUYS, SAYS MOY After this typical mistress-of-ceremonies wisecrack, Moy testified for the defense and said that Moy couldn't be guilty, because he was just an employee of a corporation and, anyway, it wasn't his club.

It was then that Judge Putnam gave the little girls a great big hand.

"Finally," he said, "Fined $800." Moy appeared and was held in $500 bond.

SIXTH YOUTH S HUNTED N $700 THEFTS

Police today, seeking a sixth youth, were trying to connect five boy suspects with loot estimated at more than $700, obtained in a long series of handbag thefts in Boston, Brighton, Jamaica Plain, Brookline and Newton.

Women whose handbags were taken were sometimes knocked down and kicked, police said. The arrest today of Nasseb Sabag, 15, of Foster st., Brighton, following the arrest last night of Arthur Wilson, 17, of Lothian rd., Brighton; Frank Schmitzer, 18, of Paul Gore st., Jamaica Plain; Paul A. Jewin, 17, of Beacon st., Back Bay, and Richard Byrne, 16, of Bay st., West Newton.

Some of them have made admissions, according to police, and all will be viewed by women victims tomorrow. Miss Mildred Gavin, Jamaica Plain, failed to identify them today.

The first four were arrested in a stolen car outside Wilson's home shortly after a purse was snatched from Mrs. Samuel C. Payson of Beach rd., Brookline.

Two 'Should Nots' Cause a Fire

Worcester, Dec. 26.—Just because Thure Westenberg woke up when he shouldn't, and fell asleep again when he shouldn't, the Westenberg brothers had a warm time of it today in their home at 3 Longborg st.

Thure, waking, got up and lit a cigarette. Then he laid down again beside his brother, Carl, and fell asleep.

The two awakened later to find the house blazing. At the house it was said that their burns, while painful, were not serious.

701 Words on Cent Card; Scotch?

Washington, Dec. 26 (AP).—Hailing it as a striking example of economy, the post-office department today gave honors to a penny picture postcard it had received containing 701 perfectly legible words.

Officials said it established a record of the number of words written on one side of a card.

It was sent to Mrs. F. H. D. of Haverford, Pa., by "E. D. E." from New Orleans. She forwarded it to the post-office to keep as an exhibit "to show what can be done."

Lone Rider Warned by Blazing Bus

"This bus is much warmer than usual," mused the lone passenger in an elevated bus in Roslindale today. "Or maybe it's getting warmer outside."

Sure enough, it was getting very much warmer outside. There was a fire under the hood of the bus at Al. Boulevard ave. and Center st. Patrolman Ward pulled an alarm, but the fire of Gulfport at Roslindale, threw sand on the blaze resulting by a short circuit, and extinguished it.

Hunter Sleeps With Rattlesnake in Bunk

Blue Is., Dec. 26 (AP).—Dr. James E. Candren, dentist, slept with a rattlesnake for five nights without knowing it.

He noted a "queer clicking sound" when he first crawled into his bunk at a deer camp to which he had gone on a hunting trip.

Five days later, on breaking up camp, he found a 3-inch rattler coiled up under the mattress.

SEABURY SUMS UP ATTACK ON WALKER

New York, Dec. 20 (AP)—Freed from restraints imposed by the committee hearings, Samuel Seabury, counsel for the Hofstadter legislative investigating committee, today was on record with a slashing attack on the credibility of ex-Mayor James J. Walker, and a demand for removal of two New York borough officials.

For the first time Seabury officially identified Betty Compton, the actress, as "the unnamed person" who figured in testimony during the Walker hearings as the one who received unnamed sums of money from Walker and Russell S. Sherwood. Seabury attacked Walker's explanation of charges against him as "incredible" and declared the former mayor gave up office "only to avoid the stigma of removal." Seabury accused Tammany Hall of "moral treason" to New York, and declared it was up to the Legislature to give New York an opportunity for better government.

The Hofstadter counsel recommended that Borough President Henry Bruckner, of the Bronx, and W. J. Flynn, public works commissioner, be removed from office, and also recommended removal of Joseph P. McFadyen, commissioner of weights and measures for failure to act as a expert chairman, the department was rife with fraud and incompetence.

Doctor in Plane Race With Stork

San Pedro, Cal., Dec. 20 (AP)—Cracking over the ether today came a frantic message to the Coast Guard from the short-wave station of the little group of light-house tenders on bleak Anacapa Island, 65 miles away.

"Send a doctor. One of our women, expectant mother, very ill."

A navy airplane was ordered out, a doctor packed his kit and science speeded to aid motherhood.

New York, Dec. 20 (AP)—The Roosevelts, occupants of the executive mansion at Albany for the last four years, are moving out next week and taking with them:

Five big boxes of books; One Scottish terrier named "Meg";

Some family photographs and trinkets; Several dozen old naval prints and some ship models.

Among the books are several autographies of verse belonging to Mrs. Roosevelt and a volume on old

CLUE TO DEATH HIDDEN IN NECK

Springfield, O., Dec. 20 (AP)—An embalmers' discovery of a possible murder clue in the death of a 70-year-old woman, previously reported to have died of natural causes, was studied by authorities today, while her body was held for questioning.

Coroner Theodore G. Scheffer decided the woman, Mrs. Alice C. Stewart, was killed by strangulation. After the embalmers detected an 18-inch strand of cord wound tightly around her neck.

Three Squares a Day Luring Thousands Back to Farms

Washington, Dec. 20 (AP)—The powerful magnet of three square meals a day and a comfortable place to sleep has lured so many persons from the city's bright lights that the nation's farm population is approaching the record-breaking 20,000,000 established in 1910.

So rapidly has the city-to-farm movement continued during the last three years that Department of Agriculture experts believe the number of persons living on the soil at the end of the year will be only slightly below the peak figure of 20,000,000.

9 OVERCOME AS CHURCH BURNS

IN LOWELL
Lowell, Dec. 20.—Rev. Lewis E. Shidau, pastor, was today completing plans to obtain another church for his congregation after a spectacular general alarm fire practically destroyed the First Presbyterian Church, causing $10,000 damage.

Nine firemen were injured or overcame by smoke and gas. Capt. Joseph Kelleher, of Ladder 2, who is in St. John's Hospital with cuts of the head, hands and arms, was the most seriously hurt. The blaze, which started in the basement, spread rapidly to the upper part of the building and had engulfed the entire structure a half hour after the fire was discovered by telephone operators in the exchange across the street. Fireman Joseph Nadeau of the Protective Company was injured and those overcome by smoke or gas were: Capt. Joseph Mahoney, Protective Company; Capt. Patrick Mahoney, Ladder 1; Lieut. Forrest Abbott, Henry Cole and Henry Young, all of Engine 3; and William Riddle, acting dispenser of the Protective Company.

EXILED NOBLES NEARING SPAIN

Las Palmas, Canary Islands, Dec. 20 (AP).—The gunboat Canavon, carrying an monarchist back to Spain from exile in Africa, and chared here today. The prisoners were removed to a hotel under guard. The declared 132 other noblemen, army officers and their families departed last September, remained in Villa Cisneros, the lonely Spanish garrison on the West African coast. Some of them, they said, were sick. They were ignorant of where they were being sent or whether they would be released on arrival in Spain. The flower of old Spanish aristocracy was represented in the exiles after the monarchist uprising last August. The most prominent among them were the Duke of Sevilla, former King Alfonso's cousin, and the colorful General Justo Sanjurjo. These two were not among the six returning to Spain today.

Cushing Divorce Suit Is Puzzle

Fitchburg, Dec. 20.—Reports from Fitchburg that Milton Leland Cushing, wealthy head of a Fitchburg grain firm, has been granted a divorce from Gertrude Cushing. The Cushing family has been a puzzle to Fitchburg since the divorce suit was filed in 1928. According to the Fitchburg dispatches, Cushing lived on the grounds of a mansion, while Mrs. Cushing charged abandonment. The couple have a daughter, the former Carolyn Cushing, who in 1928 married Alfred K. Pearson, former mayor of Gardner.

Furlough System at Border Opposed

Washington, Dec. 20 (AP).—Opposition to the application of the today furlough system for Federal employees to the customs and immigration services in Vermont was expressed by Representative Gibson (R., Vermont).

Koskoris Feeds 6576 in 20 Days, Then Suit Stops Him

Berkeley Koskoris' philanthropy ended today with his "breakfast feast" in their last guest up to the door of his store. An attachment has been slipped upon Koskoris for $500 in rent, which he claims he paid to the rent of the store he subleased at 412 Washington st. Koskoris told the men in the daily "breakfast line" that this was the last day his offer would hold good to feed penniless and hungry men, because the attachment, by trustees of the Robert West Brigham Hospital, had tied up his finances. Since December 1, Koskoris, who conducts a shoe repair shop alone, hat, necktie and clothes pressing shop, has been providing hungry men each morning with breakfast tickets to a neighboring lunchroom. Including today's issue of tickets, he has fed 6,576 persons since the first of the month. Each ticket is good for three cups of hot coffee and a large cup of coffee. Koskoris was born in Greece 45 years ago and came to the United States 12 years ago as a penniless immigrant who could barely speak English. Hardships he went through he said, impelled him to try to relieve suffering by starting his breakfast handouts.

LETTERS TIP OFF IN GUARD PROBE

New Bedford, Dec. 20.—Investigation of coast guard irregularities at the Cuttyhunk station will reopen Thursday, with eight men from the intelligence section in Washington coming to question New Bedford and Cuttyhunk citizens to elicit damaging evidence against some of the enlisted personnel. Anonymous letters from Cuttyhunk residents were originally received, whose investigation will now be supervised by the intelligence division. Disclosures include: coast guardmen who "watched for run-runners from under the bed of a fellow coast guard wife. The husband found him, but the other man made an entry in the log that he had been away from the station on official patrol duty. A guardman who was picked boat and attended a movie instead of duty. Another who used government gasoline to pilot his private auto.

"The investigation is a routine matter of personnel. Investigators are merely checking up on irregularities of watch and patrol," Capt. L. C. Cowell, assistant commandant of the Coast Guard, announced at Washington. Joseph Paul, in charge of the intelligence section, declined any investigation of his station was under way. Command, James T. Phillips, Paul's immediate superior, said there was. Parties on government property and much visiting at homes on the island have also been included in reports.

Bail Cut Denied 3 in Girl Death Case

Boston, Dec. 20.—Editors by Mrs. Anna Trabasso Teoli, her husband, Victor, and his nephew, Dominick Teoli, to lower their bail for $10,000 while awaiting trial on charges in connection with the death of Mary Beary of Lynn, failed today in district court. They were arrested after a long investigation following discovery of Miss Beary's body on the Gloucester marshes last September.

N. Y. Phone Books Eliminate 'Miss'

New York, Dec. 20 (AP).—Chivalry bowed to cold economy today. The most widely read book in New York—the directory of the New York Telephone Company—appeared in its winter edition with the courtesy title "Miss" eliminated from the names of more than 12,000 unmarried female subscribers. The company said by deleting the title it cut 30 pages from each of the hundreds of thousands of the bulky books.

Judges Take Over New Assignments

Judge Walter L. Collins has been assigned as presiding justice at the first session of Middlesex Superior Criminal Court, East Cambridge, during 1933. He succeeds Judge Thomas P. Hammond. Other judicial assignments are: Judge John E. Gibbs, first civil session, to succeed Judge Marcus Morton, and Judge Abraham E. Finnanski to succeed Judge Wilford Gray.

$2500 Stolen Gems in Toy Wagons

Philadelphia, Dec. 20 (AP).—Toy express wagons pulled along a street today by two men who gave their names as Stanley Martin and Elmer Sanford, contained, police said, $2,500 worth of stolen cutlery and watches taken in the robbery of a hardware store. Police became suspicious of the two men and searched the wagons. Authorities said the merchandise had been taken from the store of W. H. Allen.

College Heads Answer: What Will Next Flood of Graduates Do?

What about the college man?
Presidents of American universities and colleges and the nation's great industrial employers of high power have answered this all important question for the Boston Evening American.

Thousands of young men and women are graduated every year from universities and colleges, the beneficiaries of a superior general education.

In view of existing economic conditions, has there been, or is there likely to be, an overproduction?

Seeking the viewpoint of the heads of the educational institutions the Boston Evening American asked several representative college presidents this question.

"Do you think there should be an official restriction of the size of the student body for the year 1933-34, or do you favor continuing on present lines?"

From Dr. Scott, Northwestern University

Economic conditions do necessitate consideration of the quantity of graduates produced, Dr. Walter Dill Scott, Ph. D., LL. D., president of Northwestern University believes. He expresses his opinion as follows:

"A world-wide economic depression such as the present one does emphasize the necessity of knowing what is to become of all our graduates.

"An over supply in any particular professional or particular vocational should be carefully avoided. It is quite possible that too many young men and women are attending certain classes of institutions. Young men and women who possess high character and pleasing personalities would always be sought in the various fields of human activity. The better such persons are trained the better it will be for them and for the progress of civilization.

"We could quickly develop an over supply of trained young men and women if training was narrowly vocational. We are not likely to have an over supply of high grade young men and women who have been taught the fundamentals of our civilization, and who are ready to begin to serve and to learn in almost any field of human endeavor."

From Dr. Elliott

All the ability and all the altruism that can be mustered is necessary to civilization, in the opinion of Dr. Edward Charles Elliott, Ph. D., LL. D., president of Purdue University at Lafayette, Ind.

He states: "I wish I knew the answers to the far-reaching questions presented in your letter. Frankly, I do not. However, I am risking this comment.

"In spite of all that has happened, and is likely to happen in the immediate future, I am not ready to accept any defeatist attitude for higher education. While in view of diminished incomes, it may be necessary for all institutions to limit the number of students, I have the conviction that it is our solemn responsibility to keep hold of as many of our youth as possible who give promise of that intellectual ability that will be needed even more in the next generation than it has been in the past.

"Granted that the economic opportunities for the trained individual are tragically few for the moment, it is not self-evident that whatever be the state of our civilization, we shall need all of the ability and all of the altruism that can be mustered.

"I recognize that this is not a very clear or a very satisfactory reply. In other words though, I am in favor of going ahead more vigorously with our educational programs than ever before. We may have a lot of disagreeable things to learn. Therefore, let us learn these."

From Father Kelly

The Rev. R. M. Kelly, R. J., president of Loyola University, calls the questions asked of the educators very pertinent. He says:

"You have put three pertinent and timely questions before me. I answer them in brief, but in color. It appears to me that all your questions assume that the main purpose of school education is to obtain employment; that you have in mind chiefly the dollars and cents value of education. If I admitted this assumption, I should say there was overeducation in our field, and that like other industries we had better limit production or close down until the demand for our product picked up.

THREE TYPES CITED
"However, if I may say frankly, I think that such an assumption is a complete misunderstanding of the aim and scope of general education. You will wish me to be sure to make clear what I mean by general education. The three types of school education are these: First, there is an education pointed to the acquisition of a definite vocation. He is studying to be a lawyer, for example, or a business man or engineer. This kind of education I would call vocational. There is also a type of education confined to a few gifted individuals which again has a well defined objective, namely to discover new truths or facts. This is called education for research. Thirdly, there is an education not designed directly to enable a man to make a livelihood, but aims to cultivate and develop in a well balanced way, the faculties of an individual, especially the intellectual faculty, the mind. This type of education I would call liberal education. It is called by various names; general as opposed to particular, liberal as opposed to vocational, as opposed to a slave; cultural as opposed to barbarous, conning refinement and control. Cardinal Newman in his masterful book on education, 'The Idea of a University' states that the object of such education is to open the mind, to correct it, to refine it, to enable it to know, and to digest, master, rule, and use its knowledge, to give it power over its own faculties, application, flexibility, method, critical exactness, sagacity, resource, address, eloquent expression.

"In my view, the explanation of general education is its justification. General or cultural training is a house in hard times, as well as in prosperous times. It makes man more of a man; it risks him of narrowness and prejudice; it expands his mental horizon; it inspires him to do something with his talent. This explains the honor in which the well educated man has always been held. It explains, too, why great leadership requires not only native talent but well developed intelligence.

"The press recently carried a new item which strongly confirmed the need and value of general as contrasted with a strictly technical education. The Armour Institute of Technology, according to the press reports, had appointed a committee to investigate the results of the education which they were giving at this well known institution. The committee had interviews with representatives of 60 nationally known industries who employed Armour graduates. The unanimous opinion of these representatives was that most specialized knowledge was not used by the graduate.

"That the greatest need was to give their students a general education to develop in them the ability to think independently and to express their thoughts clearly and forcefully in English."

Doukhobor Leader Faces Deportation

Barkston, Dec. 20 (AP)—Peter G. Makaroff, counsel for Peter Verigin, imprisoned Doukhobor leader, will visit the latter in Prince Albert jail today and discuss plans for the future. The department of immigration intends to deport him at the expiration of his prison term for perjury.

Restrictions Put on Snow Workers

The Everett director of public welfare will today receive a resolve from the aldermen requesting that only those properly clothed with coats and shoes be given snow work in that city. President George P. Pierce, of the board, in speaking on the resolve, stated that only one person has received shoes from the welfare department in the past three months.

By BETTY ALDEN

MAY THE SPIRIT OF 1932 live as long in the hearts of this nation as the Spirit of 1776.

"There has never been a time in the history of our glorious country when the people, poor and rich alike, have shown more magnificent courage in meeting disaster than has been demonstrated during the past year of depression and hard times. . . . remarked Mrs. Barrett Wendell, chairman of the women's committee of the Boston emergency relief campaign, to a group at the Hotel Statler yesterday. . . .

This is a DIFFERENT campaign from the many various drives which have been conducted for specific welfare movements. . . . Every single person should be interested in it because every single person belongs to it. . . .

It is a measure of relief for 105 social and charitable agencies in Boston and Greater Boston in which YOU are interested: Hospitals, children societies, little wanderer's homes, old-age institutions, Y. W. C. A. and scores of worthy causes which have for years been taking care of the homeless, the hungry, the hurt in our midst. . . . the wealthy people have given abundantly and will continue to do so to way beyond their means because it is expected of them. . . . they have done so cheerfully. I believe the reason that the American people have acted so wisely and so sanely through this depression is because they felt assured that the wealthy man was doing HIS SHARE in trying to assist those less fortunate."

All Contributions for Needy

OUR DEVOTION TO HUMANITY should prompt US to alleviate the distress of our brothers and sisters on this GOOD EARTH. . . . every dollar contributed will be used directly for relief and will not go through the overseers of public welfare. . . . almost every worker for this campaign is a volunteer. . . . give courage to your fellowman who needs assistance through no fault of his own by contributing to this fund. . . . were some of the fine points brought out by the various speakers at yesterday's luncheon. . . .

Mrs. I. Tucker Burr presided and her earnestness and sincerity in taking up this cause was outstanding. . . . "After January 16, when the campaign officially opens," she said, "every moment of my time, morning, noon and night, will be devoted to this cause. If there is any way I can be of service, I am ready. Those who were rich in worldly goods are now no longer rich. . . . the wealthy people have given abundantly and will continue to do so to way beyond their means because it is expected of them. . . . they have done so cheerfully. I believe the reason that the American people have acted so wisely and so sanely through this depression is because they felt assured that the wealthy man was doing HIS SHARE in trying to assist those less fortunate."

Greater Strain Than at Present

RICHARD WHITCOMB GAVE ASSURANCE that every dollar given to the Boston Emergency Relief Fund will be used directly to the people who need it most. . . . He stressed the point that, in spite of times looking very more brighter, many hundreds of "white collar" workers will be among the unemployed this winter because they have used their reserve funds during the past year, savings are diminishing all along the line, and a greater strain than ever before will be put upon the various organizations for relief of suffering.

Robert F. Herrick, chairman of this campaign, spoke feelingly about the duty of the newspaper woman to her public. . . . "Tell your readers about this noble work," he said. "Every woman in this city will want to do her part to help another woman or man keep up their courage this winter. . . . No mother tucking babies into bed at night will rest as sweetly if she has not helped another mother somewhere in this great city to keep her babies snug and warm. . . . This is a fight for existence, a matter of life and death to thousands, and no one with a job, a bank balance, or an income should say, 'I have given enough.'"

"That I spent, I had," That I gave, I have," That I kept, I lost," quoted Mrs. Wendell. If she had burst into the old hymn "Rescue the Perishing," we would have joined in with a will. . . . we are for this campaign one hundred per cent American. Give the other fellow a Happy New Year!

Coming Home for Christmas

WE HAVE HEARD OF 80 many families on Beacon Hill doubling up this winter that we wonder if they put the children to sleep in the bureau drawers as they did in the days of old. . . . One charming lady told us yesterday that she was bringing the THIRD generation home this week. . . . "They are coming home for Christmas and I will keep them with me until the spring," she said.

Mr. Harold Walker is keeping his old home on Walnut at open Christmas Eve where he and his sweet little round-faced wife from Nantucket will receive their guests before a cheery open fire. . . . Mrs. Walker is a delightful person with a rare sense of humor.

Mr. and Mrs. "Bunny" Carter of Paris will be with Mrs. Carter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Thatcher of Beacon st. for the holidays. . . . The Williams Amours (Dorothy Thatcher) and the Thomas C. Thachers, Jr. (Vera Morgan), will make up a jolly family party. . . .

Chatty Notes of Social Circles

MRS. W. KEMPTON READ gives a luncheon today in honor of Miss Karin Stetson, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Frank Eliot Stetson of 31 Pleasant st., South Scituate, who is on the Boston debutante list. This is to be a preliminary affair to the readings on Thursday. . . . The Copley-Pizza tonight in honor of Miss Margaret Nichols, who is being presented today at the Somerset Hotel, will be leaving December 29 on a visit of ten days with Miss Mary Kimberly Oulick, Wis., before returning to college.

MRS. JOHN T. WHEELWRIGHT is giving a fashionable party later date in the city. . . . the Copley-Pizza tonight in honor of Miss Margaret Nichols, who is being presented today at the Somerset Hotel, will be leaving December 29 on a visit of ten days with Miss Mary Kimberly Oulick, Wis., before returning to college.

HELEN DEAN AND MARGARET NICHOLS IN JOINT DEBUT

Many of this season's debutantes attended the luncheon given today in the Princess ballroom of the Somerset by Mrs. William Henry Dean, of Englewood ave., Brookline, and Mrs. Philip Nichols of Park st., Newton, for the presentation of their debutantes Helen Dean and Miss Margaret Nichols. Mrs. Dean received in a gown of green velvet trimmed with old family lace, carried a spray of green orchids. Her mother selected a brown crepe gown and a corsage of orchids. Miss Nichols, who made her preliminary debut at the family summer residence, Mount Beach, Buzzards Bay, last September, wore a black and white lace gown trimmed with gold thread with a wide red sash, and carried a spray of gardenias and tulleman roses, while her mother introduced her in a dark velvet gown, with a bouquet of gardenias.

Classmates Attend
Among the guests were a number of relatives, Miss Margaret McKenzie of Brookline, an aunt of Miss Dean's, also Mrs. H. G. Tucker of Boston, Mrs. Nichols' sister, Miss Katherine Nichols, the debutante's oldest sister. . . . Others included a number of college friends, Miss Virginia Wright and Miss Carnar Clark from Vassar and Miss Germaine Hill from Rollins College, Florida. . . . Another group were Miss Faith Chapman of Boston, Miss Florence C. Brigham of Pittsfield, Miss Katherine Stone of Lexington, a Vassar student, Miss Mary Kimbrey of Oshkosh, Wis., and Miss Margaret Snyder of Winchester, who is now at the Connecticut College, all three classmates at the Emma Willard school, Troy, N. Y., with Miss Nichols. . . . Others invited were Miss Anne Peterson, daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. Abbot Peterson of Brookline, Mrs. Charles Palmer of Weston (Hope Porter), Mrs. Arthur Woodman of Boston, Mrs. Henry Dean, both of Brookline, and Miss Charlotte Page, who is engaged to Mr. Jack England. . . . Multi-class is a Brommer school graduate, and before entering the Lawrence College at Appleton, Wis., N. Y., toured Europe in company with her mother. Her sister debutante was graduated from the Emma Willard school last June.

Books--And a Number of Things
By CHARLES HANSON TOWNE
Looking through a threadbare copy of that best of old-time books, "The Literary Shop" by the late James L. Ford, I was amused again, as I had been years ago by his descriptions of happenings in the ancient New York Ledger offices. . . . The Ledger was a weekly, and it was the proprietor, Bonner, who made out and finally passed through the wicket to the fortunate verifiers. . . . Sometimes a door on the opposite side of the little reception room would open and a girl would appear with a sheet of rejected manuscripts. She would curtsy and unfeelingly call out the unlucky name, and he would step forward to receive his tortoise brain chubb. If their names were called from the opposite side, they knew a check awaited them. . . . In those vanished days, poets sold outright anything that flowed from their pens. Now they dispose only of the first magazine rights, as writers of prose do; and sometimes they pick up an extra check, or even larger royalties, when their verses are set to music, or they receive book royalties or sell their English rights, though generally these go for a mere 10 shillings as against the higher rates paid by American magazines. . . . They are not always so fortunate about song rights. The late Robert Campbell Rogers, author of the beautiful poem, "The Rosary," let Ethelbert Nevin have for the vast sum of fifteen dollars the right. Had he made a contract for the custom today, his offering would have been paid to overflow through many years. . . . I myself, in my youth, let a sonnet by the late famous English poet, the late Amy Wood, be sold for a mere twenty-five dollars. It was called "A Lover in Damascus" and had a remarkable success, both abroad in this country. That was due to the music alone, I am convinced. Later, I received royalties of no inconsiderable amount on the mechanical record and radio rights; three hundred dollars, and had the sheet music never came to me, since I had stupidly waived all claim to them. The experience taught me a bitter lesson. Never sell any manuscript outright. . . . Deems Taylor made a setting of Alfred Noyes' "The Highwayman," but the poem was satire enough to make a lawyer's arrangement with the composer was most successful—Ralph Warrenton sang it many times, among others—

Points About the Fashionables
By Dorothy Whipple Fry
WARREN T. LOVELL FOR Miss Edith Ross and Miss Mary Bird to have the honor of attending the diplomatic banquet last week. They are the granddaughters of Mrs. Charles Sumner Bird and made their formal debut earlier in the season at a delightful house dance given for them by Mrs. Bird. We hear that they had a most exciting visit in Washington. . . . Miss Mary Haskell is one of the participants in the case of the "Reluctant Dragon." She is exquisite in her unique costume of old English dancing maid. Her white, puffy sleeves and tight bodice are most becoming to her petite good looks. She has large brown eyes and lovely long lashes and a sweet expression. She is in a dance of Old English boys and girls. . . . Others in the dance are Miss Theodora Lawrence, Miss Elmer Baker, Miss Katherine Johnson, Miss Constance Turner, Miss Edith Seaton of Weston, who is no petite and demure; Miss Rosamond Emerson and Miss Sally Walters. . . . Miss ROSAMOND NEWTON has an interesting past—dressed in caudy regalia she takes the part of the race track "Bookie." Miss Newton is a clever young person who is active in Junior League affairs. She is slightly built with brown hair and hazel brown eyes. We saw her the other day at a Junior League luncheon looking snappy in a bright green tweed ensemble and a sporty little hat to match. . . . We also saw Miss Priscilla Hodges a few days ago. She reported having a gorgeous time at the Zoro ball, where she wore a creation in silver. She was with her pal and running mate, Miss Alice Burrage, who is such a popular young member of the Junior League. Miss Burrage is blonde and always looks exceedingly well dressed. . . . She is a charming blonde who is looking attractive and appearing often in the social limelight. She is lovely Mrs. Ames Ames (Evelyn Perkins) of Coolidge High, Cambridge. She is a very interesting young matron with a great deal of "pep." She is the committee for the Elia Memorial benefit, which was so successful. She has long, golden hair and blue eyes. She parts her hair on the side and wears becomingly about her face. . . . Gene, who was just another cat until a few days ago, is the Police Commissioner's Hottum at the time of the cat show, today is a famous cat show in what famous cats should not be. . . . The three-month-old kitten, now official mascot at the station, took such a long walk that he returned with two paw troubles.

Rockefellers Aid Tech Air Study
A substantial grant of money by the Rockefeller Foundation to the Massachusetts Institute of Technology aerological research department will eventually mean more accurate local weather forecasts. . . . The gift will enable Tech scientists to complete their airplane studies of atmospheric conditions above Boston and they will get just flat. . . . Already much valuable data regarding the presence of bacteria and pollen in the atmosphere have been obtained. The research has been going on for many years. . . . local weather forecasts more accurate.

Helen Choate Weds in New York
A wedding of interest to a number of Boston society people who have gone over to New York for the event is that of Miss Helen Choate, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Choate, Jr., of New York City, and Mr. Geoffrey Platt, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Platt, also of New York, which takes place this afternoon at 3 o'clock in the church of the Heavenly Rest. . . . The maid of honor for the ceremony will be performed by the Rev. Dr. William Greenough Tucker, former headmaster of Mark's school, which the bridegroom attended, is Miss Priscilla Choate, the bride's sister.

Christmas Basket of Long Ago Still Heps Feed

Intrinsic worth does not always determine the value of a gift in the eyes of the recipient. A cup of water means more to a man parched with thirst than would a glass of choice wine. And a crust of bread to a famished man would appear as a banquet.

To the Goodwills who have already contributed to the Boston American Christmas Basket Fund, and to those who intend to do so, a letter recently received by the editor indicates how great must have been the need of one who once received a Christmas basket and how deeply grateful that one still is for help received many years ago.

The letter, we are sure, breathes the gratitude that will be in thousands of hearts on Christmas Day for the assistance rendered this year to the needy. Here it is:

"Dear Sir: I am writing $5.00 from myself and one from my little brother. We are pretty lucky to get our share of Christmas gifts now, but I want you to know why I am sending this money away up here in Ontario.

MOTHER MADE HAPPY

"When my mother was a girl, she had to write for a Christmas basket, and God knows how good the Christmas basket editor was to her, as she got everything she needed for her little brothers and sisters, and she was so happy about Christmas they all had as they were very poor. That was a long time ago, and I hope you can make many children happy as my mother's mother then.

(Signed) "Fred and Ronald."

There is gratitude that passes through two generations. Imagine how deplorable the mother of these two boys must have been when she applied for a basket. Imagine what it must have meant to her and her hungry little brothers and sisters, when even today, she takes her sons on her knee at Christmas time and tells them the story. Tells them to never forget, never let that fortune have made her comfortable, that once she asked for a basket for Christmas.

This year there are many thousands in the same position as the mother of Fred and Ronald once was in. The poor are not plentiful and their gratitude will be as undying as is this woman's.

To the poor, a Christmas Basket will come as a gift from heaven. So give today, before it is too late. Your daughter, large or small, will make some mother of hungry children happy.

AID OUT OF PRISON

Another letter we wish to mention comes from Rhode Island state prison. It is brief. It is the letter the writer, a prisoner, was allowed to send last week. It reads:

"Enclosed find $5 which I hope you will forward to the little boy whose plea for aid appeared in the Boston American of Dec. 9. Sincerely —"

A prison is not the first place where one would look for a heart that could be touched by the plea of a hungry boy. Truly, "the plea of a child shall go to the heart of the man." It is the first time of thousands of hungry youngsters.

Comy "Yes" with a contribution to the Christmas Basket Editor, 5 Winthrop sq., Boston.

CASE NO. 22

Will you please send us a basket for Christmas? We are a family of 12. The smallest is one and the oldest is 18. The girl is 15. It is the only one who is not only makes it a week. That's all we have to live on.

We tried to get help from the city, but they won't give it to me. We have to use two lamps for the whole house.

We didn't have a thing for Thanksgiving except a little ham and a burger and bread.

The children have no warm clothes to wear to school. There are two that haven't even shoes. If you send me a basket it will make the children very happy as they didn't get anything last Christmas and the six smallest ones are just learning about Santa Claus.

My husband died last December 13, 1931, and left us with nothing.

The children's ages range from 4 to 17 years. There are always two or three days out the week when they don't get anything to eat at all. I'd like to see them happy for one day out of the year, and I pray that they will be remembered.

This mother lives in Everett. Anyone wishing to investigate this case may call the Christmas Fund Editor, Liberty 4000, and ask for Case No. 22.

CASE NO. 23

I am writing to you to see if you could help me out for Christmas as my husband is out of work for over a year. It may seem strange that such a small family could be so destitute. I draw welfare aid which amounts to $6 a week and I am living in an attic for $7 a month so you can see how tight we are. No one else.

I am under the doctor's care at the Massachusetts General Hospital and I am to go under an operation but I am trying to pray till I get out of Christmas so I can take the children to the doctor. He has advised to move from where I am as it is too high for my condition.

The children are in great need of warm clothes and shoes. I sent to the school today for shoes for the children but the teacher said that the funds are too low, so I sent to the City Relief I was told and my little girl's coat

ELKS PUT $25 IN BASKET FUND

The Boston Evening American Christmas Basket Fund is $25 richer as a result of a contribution from Boston Lodge of Elks Chapter 4000, R. 2. These good fellows have contributed to the American Basket Fund every year since its establishment.

A check for the amount was handed to a representative of the American Basket Fund, and the Elks Chapter 4000, R. 2, treasurer, Mr. J. P. Dineen, has contributed to the fund since it was established in memory of J. B. T. L. R. Quinn.

Approximately $8,000 in cash, food and supplies poured into the Knockville community chest yesterday under the fast program sponsored by the Knoxville Journal and endorsed by city officials and church, fraternal and civic organizations.

Officials estimated that more than 10,000 families went without one or more meals in turn over what would have been spent on or used for the poor. Another fast day in planned later in the winter.

It is always worrying over the bills. We don't know how to thank you if you do us that only one favor and that is to send the Christmas Basket.

We are always going hungry to get our Christmas Basket. We hope for my mother's sake that you will please not forget us and do us that one favor to send us the basket.

This boy lives in West End. Anyone wishing to investigate this case may call the Christmas Fund Editor, Liberty 4000, and ask for Case No. 23.

CASE NO. 30

I am writing to ask you to please send me a basket of food for Christmas, as my husband was only working three or four days a week when he got laid off Friday and don't know when he will get work again. I am discouraged, as my gas and electricity have both been shut off. I have five children, four boys and one girl. We hurried four out of nine. I have a big doctor and undertaker like that I can't pay, and now the grocer and he couldn't let me have any soap, as I owe him $35. My children never get milk, as I have to get a quart a day for the baby. Also, I have to get a good meal a week, and that is Sunday dinner.

My children are always asking for more food and they need clothes, so had they go to school pretty dirty sometimes, as I have to wash what they have and they don't dry. I have no fire half the time. I have to depend on the children getting money for the dump. Please, for the children's sake, send me a good Christmas dinner, and I shall be so happy for my children, as they said we want a good dinner Christmas.

Who could, or would aid me. I live in a little room, very clean. There is a two burner gas stove but no oven. I can roast food, and no oven. Whether you can give me a Christmas dinner or not, please do not make my name public. Maybe I'll rise out of it later.

This woman lives in the South End. Anyone wishing to investigate this case may call the Christmas Fund Editor, Liberty 4000, and ask for Case No. 24.

We are 10 in the family and are mostly all small children. My father, who is tired, hasn't been working for over two years. He is tired of looking for a job and he can't go to look for a job as much because his shoes are worn out. They are all he has for Christmas and yet he has to make the most of them.

My mother is ill and tired. She

WOE APLENTY IN TRUCK THEFT

That truck of Fred Smith's is still being sought by the police.

Smith, who owns a trucking business in Cambridge, is now in the city jail, charged with the theft of a truck from the city of Boston, Dec. 18.

When police arrested Smith, they found a truck in the city of Boston, Dec. 18, which was the same truck which was stolen from the city of Boston, Dec. 18.

The truck, which was a 1931 model, was found in the city of Boston, Dec. 18, and was the same truck which was stolen from the city of Boston, Dec. 18.

In quiet, unexpected way, the result of the French Government's policy of non-intervention in the Spanish civil war is being felt in the United States. The French Government, as a result of its policy, is being forced to high and mighty, and has refused to pay when they had no right to do so. The State Department is in a jam again, and is being forced to pay when they had no right to do so. Styles Didn't Jibe, ↓ "Coney" Home Again.

He then showed our big break up against the reign in most of the large cities in the little old U. S. A. we'll tell the world that Boston is about the toughest fight town on the map. For instance down in the Boston Garden, last night, Andy Callahan, New England's triple champion, and King Tut, the Minneapolis slugger, were giving everything they had. There was no doubt but they were "leveling." But that didn't prevent the gallery gods from giving the two scrappers what in the best circles is known as "the rawhorse." In little old New York they call it the "Bionix chess." Despite the fact that it was as plain as the nose on Jimmy Duran's face to everyone who had an iota of taste knowledge—namely, that the two fighters were in the same class, and that the sameness in the styles of the two and their twin desire to bore in close like bulldozers trying for the throat hold, and hammer and batter and prod at the body, prevented them doing anything spectacular or sensational, the gallery gods got the bee in their bonnets and they were giving the two scrappers a "rawhorse" for trying. Those two little rawhide and iron fighting men took more punishment in every round last night than some fighters assimilate in an entire bout. But their mauling, prodding body battering attack and their desire to rip in close, hold with one hand and batter with the other, was so plain and so obvious that there was no doubt, however, but that the two were giving everything they had.

King Tut is touched to fight. He comes in under a crouch like a snapping turtle drawn into its shell and doesn't open up until he gets in close when he can hook and shoot in short arm blows to head or body. He's a fighter whom a boxer of the Callahan type has to meet at his own style. By the time the first round was over it was easy to see what the next 10 were going to be. On paper the encounter figured the best of the year. But in the ring it was seen that the styles of the two militated against a fast contest. Put King Tut against a fast stand up boxer and the bout would be a whiz bang. But when two maulers like Callahan and the other get together it takes more than 10 rounds to get one or the other out of his shell and hitting on the high ear.

Fire Commr Edward McLaughlin sitting at the ringed-out broadcast-tape: "Jim Maloney will kick most of the big fellows yet. Remember that fight with Dixon was the first Jim had in more than a year and a half. He had to build off more than 25 pounds and he was a new guy. Dixon was a good fighter, but he was a kid, which makes a good fighter look bad. Maloney still has punch and speed. There are not more than five big fellows in the world who can hit Maloney right now. But that punch of his he stands a chance of using. He's got a right hand that's like a sledge hammer. It gives you action. Win or lose Shamus never fails. He's got a right arm for their money. That's why we all are with him and why Jim will pack 'em in wherever he fights." Jerry Cleary, the Braun of Brummell of the Back Bay News, spats and all, chipped in with a few words of his own. "I don't know if you've read the Carroll column," he said, "but I can tell you that Jim Maloney has always has kept him in the money." After relieving himself of a few drops of wisdom Jerry called a taxi and bed himself to the City Hospital to let Joe Doherty see his new spats and malacca cane. Maloney was glad to hear that good old Joe is on the mend and that he'll be able to see him in the ring. It will come before he gets over Jerry Cleary's spats, however.

The winter woods tell many tales. You seldom find the dramatic scenes and trances written in the snow in the little patches of woods near a cave that are enacted for you in the great North Woods. You find the tracks of the waste lands about Boston after a snowfall in the Intriguing, Wondrous, and Mysterious. The tracks of the rabbits were plentiful last summer we failed to see a single rabbit. It was Sunday! No foxes or human killers around. Must have been a rabbit plague. Plenty of pheasant tracks. We followed one for a quarter of a mile before it ended with a big cock taking to the wing. He was a bird of the woods. He was a bird of the snow jacking off. Pheasants never fly when the wings brushed the snow. When the wings brushed the snow, the wings brushed the snow. Wonder if pheasants, like partridge, burrow in the snow? We have seen partridge fly head down into the snow and burrow in for a minute. Sometimes they do not come to the surface for 20 or 30 feet. The snow is a great enemy of the pheasant. The snow is the open fields are blessings for the feet of the woods in the snow. The snow is the open fields are blessings for the feet of the woods in the snow. You find the snow about them covered with bird prints.

Of course being a Bruin rooster we'd be parking ourselves in the Garden tonight anyway. That last home game between the Bruins and the Leafs would make you come again anyway. Wow, what a hockey! Never saw better. But with little Conney Weiland holding the Bruins center ice position for Ottawa you couldn't keep us away from the Bruins. Conney was in last position. Conney has strung together his hat again with the Bruins. He's right up front in the scoring line, skating like a streak of greased lightning. He's got a shot like Daniel Boone. Somehow or other that first Bruin line did a good job of the game without Conney. Wish he hadn't been traded into the hinterlands. We hockey fans certainly miss our little pal.

The movement of Dinny M. Namata for head coach originated here, where he has his following as a team-mate of Joe McKenna and as a favorite son of Mac Cavanaugh, is gaining headway. In fact, Dinny's chances of taking over the Ram's coaching berth today are as bright as any candidate's.

NEW YORK BANKERS DEFIED BOSSES; TIP TO CITIES

By R. C. FORBES

New York City bankers have defied the wishes of their bosses in the city of New York and have taken a stand in support of the city's financial interests. The bankers have refused to follow the orders of the city's financial officials and have instead taken a stand in support of the city's financial interests. This action has caused a great deal of controversy and has led to a number of accusations against the bankers. The bankers have defended their actions and have stated that they are acting in the best interests of the city and its citizens. They have also stated that they are not interested in making a profit and are only interested in helping the city to improve its financial situation. The city's financial officials have responded by stating that they are not interested in the bankers' actions and are only interested in the city's financial interests. They have also stated that they are not interested in making a profit and are only interested in helping the city to improve its financial situation.

STATE ST.

Hears: That the confused gyrations of prices are driving out of the sidelines in greater numbers. A market which looks as though it were going to fall apart, only to rally as critical points are reached, is best avoided, suggested here last Friday. The "line" which prices are making as measured by the closing prices on the Dow Jones index is still in force. It has now run for 12 sessions. It will be time enough to jump in when a definite break away from the formation takes place. In the meantime, exasperation and nervousness are avoided, and it will later enable us to make a quiet, unburned decision regarding the future of prices.

Market Policy: The wisdom of giving up a position taken around the lows of October, November and December is still questioned by some traders. They feel it would have been better to ride through the razzle-dazzle since last Friday. They lose sight of the other side of the market picture.

It should be quite obvious that some pretty effective action has been taken to stabilize the market. The market is still in a state of confusion, but the action has been effective. The market is still in a state of confusion, but the action has been effective.

FALSE STARTS BULL CAUSE

False starts in the past have caused considerable injury to the bull cause in the stock market. Most of these false starts have been due to misleading propaganda circulated by special interests. A real upswing in the securities market will have to be based on something more substantial than a few days of bears or on misleading propaganda. The next Congress could readily provide material to justify a new law, notably in constructive legislation to replace destructive legislation in force. There are many other influences that could bring about a turn for the better, notably an upturn in commodity prices.

Position of Banks Less Strained

By LEWIS HANEY (Professor of Economics, New York University) New York, Dec. 23.—The business news of the past week has been rather colorful, except for the foreign debt developments. On the whole, industrial activity has continued to slip off seasonally, and retail trade, while doing about as well as could be expected, has been somewhat less than in the consumer purchasing power.

We should not be surprised or alarmed to find Mr. Average Consumer buying relatively little and watching the price tags this year. The wonder is that so many other influences that could bring about a turn for the better, notably an upturn in commodity prices.

The bright spots in the market situation are as follows: 1.—The automobile manufacturers are hopeful enough to have stepped up production of new model cars. 2.—France seems to be preparing to take a more reasonable attitude toward her debt to us, and arrangements may yet be made to remove the stigma of default from her record.

We have now got back all the gold we lost during the earlier part of the year, and the banking situation is a whole lot better. The banking situation is a whole lot better, and the banking situation is a whole lot better.

As to the statistical data, we find several favorable developments: 1.—Production of steel and of electric power has been slipping off a little more than usual for several months. 2.—A week ago, railway car loadings declined more than seasonally by the "millennial" loadings. Primary distribution appears to have put out under a 12 percent below a year ago.

Business volume as measured by checks drawn is extremely low. The checks drawn last week were 12 percent below a year ago. The checks drawn last week were 12 percent below a year ago.

Back of all this the low purchases of gold, silver, copper, tin, lead and antimony are a little more than usual for several months. The purchases are a little more than usual for several months, and the purchases are a little more than usual for several months.

Position of Banks Less Strained

By LEWIS HANEY (Professor of Economics, New York University) New York, Dec. 23.—The business news of the past week has been rather colorful, except for the foreign debt developments. On the whole, industrial activity has continued to slip off seasonally, and retail trade, while doing about as well as could be expected, has been somewhat less than in the consumer purchasing power.

We should not be surprised or alarmed to find Mr. Average Consumer buying relatively little and watching the price tags this year. The wonder is that so many other influences that could bring about a turn for the better, notably an upturn in commodity prices.

The bright spots in the market situation are as follows: 1.—The automobile manufacturers are hopeful enough to have stepped up production of new model cars. 2.—France seems to be preparing to take a more reasonable attitude toward her debt to us, and arrangements may yet be made to remove the stigma of default from her record.

We have now got back all the gold we lost during the earlier part of the year, and the banking situation is a whole lot better. The banking situation is a whole lot better, and the banking situation is a whole lot better.

As to the statistical data, we find several favorable developments: 1.—Production of steel and of electric power has been slipping off a little more than usual for several months. 2.—A week ago, railway car loadings declined more than seasonally by the "millennial" loadings. Primary distribution appears to have put out under a 12 percent below a year ago.

Business volume as measured by checks drawn is extremely low. The checks drawn last week were 12 percent below a year ago. The checks drawn last week were 12 percent below a year ago.

Back of all this the low purchases of gold, silver, copper, tin, lead and antimony are a little more than usual for several months. The purchases are a little more than usual for several months, and the purchases are a little more than usual for several months.

Bank Statement: Boston balance... $11,000,000. Boston clearance... $10,000,000. The bank statement shows a balance of $11,000,000 and a clearance of $10,000,000.

New York Bonds: The New York Bonds reported a net loss of 1.11 points, ending at 111.11. The decline was due to a number of factors, including a general decline in the market and a number of specific issues. The New York Bonds also reported a number of new issues, including a new issue of 100,000 shares of common stock by the New York City Trust Company.

Unemployment Crisis U. S. Might Heed Germany's Example

In a nationwide broadcast to his fellow citizens of the German Republic, their new Chancellor, General Kurt von Schleicher, has made a solemn pledge for the immediate relief of the unemployed of Germany that ought to be "read, marked, learned and inwardly digested" by every Senator and Representative in Congress.

This is the practical and humane procedure that Chancellor von Schleicher pledges for the relief of Germany's five million unemployed:

"My program consists of one single point: The creation of work. All the measures that the Government will carry out will more or less serve this one purpose. Trusting recently through the country, I have convinced myself that Germans of all classes are dominated by only one thought: 'Give us work—we are not interested in anything else, least of all in amendments to the Constitution and other fine things that do not feed us.'"

All sorts and conditions of Americans, and most of all their Senators and Representatives in Congress, ought to be dominated in this crisis by the same thought and the same determination—the creation of work for the unemployed.

And the logical program to provide our unemployed with the employment that they seek to save themselves and their dependents from starvation is before both Houses of Congress in the form of legislative proposals for a public works program to be financed by a Prosperity Loan.

America's unemployed to the number of twelve million, and the millions of other Americans who are their dependents, are just as eager for work as are Germany's five million jobsless. America's unemployed, as the rigors of Winter set in, like Germany's unemployed, "are not interested in anything else" but work. Least of all are they interested in half-baked proposals for the Government of the Philippine Islands right, fourteen, or nineteen years hence, in amendments to the League Protocol, in the political problems of Europe and Asia, "and other fine things that do not feed" our unemployed fellow citizens here at home.

Senator Byrnes of South Carolina speaks not only for himself, let us hope, but for a majority of both Houses of Congress when he proclaims his firm resolve that this paramount issue of the present session—the creation of work for the unemployed—shall be forced upon the attention of the Senate and the House, and kept before both Houses until its challenge is met.

Senator Wagner of New York speaks not only for himself, let us hope, but also for a majority of both Houses of Congress when he declares that "public works should be paid for by bonds issued for a term of years, just as any capital expenditure would be paid for by a business concern."

In the Industrial Employment Information Bulletin for October, recently issued by the Department of Labor, appears the admission that "Federal aid and State and County highway construction continued as the means of employment for large forces of men," while "the volume of private and commercial building decreased."

Here is additional evidence from an Administration source of the urgent need for Federal leadership in new construction for the relief of the unemployed that only a public works program financed by a Prosperity Loan can provide.

Creating work to relieve unemployment is not a partisan program in Germany, but a patriotic and national endeavor. It ought to be that, and nothing less than that, in the United States.

If Germany, which lost the Great War, can go to the relief of her five million unemployed with an adequate program of public works, surely the United States, which brought victory to the banners of the Allies, can do as much for our twelve million unemployed and for their dependents.

Jobs as Christmas Gifts

A large number of Boston's army of unemployed are about to enter upon their fourth jobless Christmas.

One day's work for any of these persons may mean a little Yuletide cheer in some friendless but deserving family. And throughout the city—among home owners especially—in fortunate households, that one day's work exists many thousand times in some form or other. It may be a day's work at cleaning, or window washing. It may be in making minor repairs to property.

The Boston Municipal Employment Bureau, Director John J. Shields, will handle this work without charge to either party. The office is at 25 Church st. The telephone is Faber 8607.

Just Folks

The Doubter

He finds it hard to sell himself
The goods upon life's well-stocked shelf.
The truth, that wealth is but a part
Of comfort for the human heart;
That days of labor, if you please,
Can be as bright as days of ease;
That little gardens owners keep
Are lovelier than acres deep
A force of hired men must lose
Against the constant weeds that grow.
He stands before the counter spread
And doubtfully he shakes his head.
Life offers him these notions queer:
That little is sufficient here;
That one can still have happiness
Without the gold the rich possess;
That nothing lasting ever comes
From pomp and fame's loud rolling drums;
That self-respect and peace of mind
Are gained by being brave and kind.
These are the goods for joys and fears
Which life has offered men for years;
The sturdy faith our fathers taught,
The home enriched by tender thought,
The friendships long and tried and true,
The helpful deeds all men can do.
Set le, by wealth deserted, stares
At all the old and simple ways
And still imagines he knows why.
That victor's something man must buy.

Behind the False Front

Permanent Court of International Justice—that is what the League of Nations calls its Court officially. But is it a Court of Justice? Let us see.

Germany belongs to the League Court. So does Austria. And not long ago Germany and Austria arranged a Customs Union, strictly between themselves, for good reasons of their own.

But France also belongs to the League Court—and France didn't want Germany and Austria to have a Customs Union and improve their conditions. France wanted to keep both countries weak.

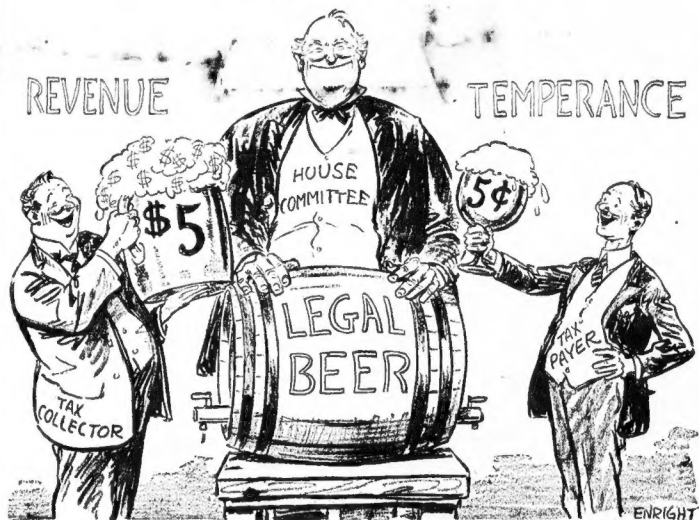

So France went before the League Court, and with the votes of her Little Entente and other French nations, defeated the Customs Union by eleven votes to nine.

That decision proved to the whole world that Intrigue and Militarism and Old World Politics—not international justice—rule the League Court.

Now the internationalists are again asking Uncle Sam to join the Court and submit to its jurisdiction.

But don't worry. Uncle Sam knows what is behind the false front.

Out of the Same Barrel

The tax collector wears a grin
Around his thirty quills.
He sees the money rolling in
To pay the nation's bills.
The man who pays the taxes, too,
Can feel his tonsils throb.
He smiles to think of foaming brew
Returning to the job.

The gangster and the racketeer
Are trembling here and aft
Because they fear that legal beer
Will wreck their easy graft.
The beer of old will break the hold
Of whiskey's flery spell,
For amber brew spells Revenue
And Temperance as well.

O. O. McIntyre -- New York Day by Day

The Produce Market

NEW YORK, Dec. 20.—Nowhere, outside the fierce mill of Times Square, is there a livelier joust to life than along the produce market on enormously wide West st. It stretches in haphazard warrens of two and three-story brick houses with projecting wood on awnings.

Thinly crated grapes and grape fruit, and sacks of onions and carrots overflow the sidewalks, with pyramids of cabbage sometimes collapsing in the gutter. So packed is the pavement tumble, passersby must zig-zag through tiny footpaths. Also, the perpetual shuffle of drolls and vagabonds.

Between truck loads, handlers pitch ball in the street or moose in various nooks. Gin peddlers hawk twigs from the hip. It is about the only section of New York where architecture rarely changes. There still are green-shuttered rustic inns with front parlors in lump gilt and red plush.

The most depressing street down town, to me, is Fulton, particularly at the Broadway corner. In a newspaper shop in this area, I spent the unhappiest cycle of life. Now, years afterward, I avoid it as some plague patch. In varied catch-balls at migratory journalism, it was, by odds, the most unfriendly handout. And I hailed its demise with grisly chuckle. The balm in Gilead was that I met there three of the finest men I know—Rube Goldberg, Grantland Rice and Homer Davidson.

Vesey st., across St. Paul's from Fulton, reflected none of the morbid nuances of Fulton. During the lunch hour, I would idle there, and reaching it was like stepping from darkness into light. Building facades were dazzled in shavings of sun.

And then there was Old Mary, shawled apple woman to Russell Sage, whose noon basket was a luscious trove. In all New York, I never saw a more contented old woman.

This has been one of those inspirational days, when a feeling of martyrdom incites a temptation to emulate the ancients—don the hair shirt, roam the hills, exist on berries and nuts and let everything go woom! Eight days overdue with a magazine piece, I moaned to my wife: "I don't believe I can go on."

And to show you how much attention people pay to what I say around this house, she chirped brightly: "Why not wait and go tomorrow?" (Copyright, 1932, by the Boston Evening American.)

Facts—By All Means By Claude G. Bowers

Author of "The Struggle for Democracy in America," "Founders of the Republic," "Jefferson and Democracy," "The Tragic Era" and other important works, now writing for the Boston Evening American.

AT THIS MOMENT, IT SEEMS, judging by the personnel of the new government, that France will reverse herself on the debt payment of the 15th, and then ask for a reconsideration of the debt. Of course, there is nothing for this country to negotiate until the payment is made.

Meanwhile the present administration is interesting itself in the debt situation to a degree that is interesting in view of its early demise. Its duty is to concern itself with the payments due on the 15th, and to do nothing calculated in any way to commit or embarrass the new administration on the general subject. The idea that now seems uppermost in the mind of Mr. Hoover is to appoint another "fact finding commission" to be composed of "experts."

We recall, apropos of the latter, that when the bankers took over the "settlement" of the reparation and kindred questions there was widespread feeling from our most dignified journals and from our best people. "Now," they said, "we shall have results. These miscreant politicians calling themselves statesmen have been shoveling aside and experts in finance have taken matters in hand. Glory be!"

Now many people joined in the cry. . . .

The Trouble With "Experts"
Now it appears that the "experts" muddled things, terribly, and have had just a little to do with making the new man now in. The trouble with "experts" is that they see the special point on which, so experts, they are interested, and fail to see the co-related human equation in government, discounting as that may be.

Experts are the agents of statesmen, and very valuable agents; but matters of government, however, statesmen must never be the agent of the expert.

For what do we have? Why the experts have trailed right back into their failure and missed it into the laps of the statesmen; and it is always been so.

Not a Gift, But a Loan
There has been so much flagrant misrepresentation on the debts that we really need the facts and if a "fact-finding commission" is necessary it can do no harm. Of course, the facts it will find will depend on the personnel of the commission. We can mention the names of distinguished gentlemen for this commission who specially would report back as a "fact" that we are America really owe no debts; that we must pay our debts.

As to fact: On Sunday a clergyman in New York solemnly asserted that when the Liberty Bonds were sold during the war the American people really thought they were giving the money. Now some of us who bought the bonds did not think so at all. And we have it on the authority of the American people that everywhere they went in urging the sale, he had to explain very explicitly that it was not a gift, but a loan that would be paid back like any other loan.

And we have it on his authority that the nations that got the loan never even suggested that the money raised was a gift.

Let us at least start out with "facts" and not the fiction of the propagandists.

Here Are a Few Facts
But if we are to have a fact-finding commission there are certain facts to which the American people will be entitled. Here are a few facts in answer to the questions:

1—When we made the settlement on the debts before, how much did we forgive our debtors, and how much did it cost us?

2—At that time we greatly reduced the interest charges on the debtors and did not reduce the interest on the bonds we sold to get the money to loan the debtors. How much?

3—Where are the Liberty Bonds now? How much of them have been sold? How much of them have been redeemed? How much of them have been sold at a profit? How much of them have been sold at a loss?

4—How much money will have to be paid to the debtors? How much of it will be paid in cash? How much of it will be paid in bonds? How much of it will be paid in interest?

5—How much money will have to be paid to the debtors? How much of it will be paid in cash? How much of it will be paid in bonds? How much of it will be paid in interest?

6—How much money will have to be paid to the debtors? How much of it will be paid in cash? How much of it will be paid in bonds? How much of it will be paid in interest?

7—How much money will have to be paid to the debtors? How much of it will be paid in cash? How much of it will be paid in bonds? How much of it will be paid in interest?

8—How much money will have to be paid to the debtors? How much of it will be paid in cash? How much of it will be paid in bonds? How much of it will be paid in interest?

9—How much money will have to be paid to the debtors? How much of it will be paid in cash? How much of it will be paid in bonds? How much of it will be paid in interest?

10—How much money will have to be paid to the debtors? How much of it will be paid in cash? How much of it will be paid in bonds? How much of it will be paid in interest?

11—How much money will have to be paid to the debtors? How much of it will be paid in cash? How much of it will be paid in bonds? How much of it will be paid in interest?

12—How much money will have to be paid to the debtors? How much of it will be paid in cash? How much of it will be paid in bonds? How much of it will be paid in interest?

13—How much money will have to be paid to the debtors? How much of it will be paid in cash? How much of it will be paid in bonds? How much of it will be paid in interest?
